Subject: Enhanced emissions reporting

The new proposed emissions reporting would be a disaster for small and low income rural land owners whom must burn the numerous bark beetle killed trees and brush that grows in mountains. The expense of hiring experts to report the amount of pollutants from several brush piles burned compared to mass dead vegetation accumulating resulting in wild fires burning thousands of acres is unacceptable. Stick to monitoring the large companies with regulations only trained experts are capable of complying to, please! Please reconsider the proposal. You have good intentions but one fix all would be detrimental to the little people.

Sincerely, Michael Sanders
