Testimony of Ryan Wiggins, Communities for Clean Ports
On the Adoption of the Diesel Truck and Bus Rule

Presented to CARB
11-12 December 2008
Sacramento, California

Good afternoon, my name is Ryan Wiggins. I am here on behalf of Communities for Clean Ports and a significant number of residents of California who have signed a petition to support a strong diesel truck and bus rule regulation. California has faced a silent economic and health crisis for decades originating from the toxic emissions produced by dirty diesel trucks that currently costs us over $28 billion dollars every year in premature deaths, hospital visits, lost days of work, and other health costs. According to CARB's own study this regulation will save California as much as $68 billion, or $62.5 billion above and beyond the $5.5 billion dollars for upgrading and replacing dirty diesel trucks. Those who say that there is a better alternative to this regulation miss the point. We say that Californians have already been paying a price with their health and even their lives, and the cost has been too high for too long.

In truth it would be a great error to delay cleaning up diesel emissions because we know that the economy will recover and as it grows there will be more trucks on the road, driving more miles, and emitting more pollutants. Also, CARB made it publicly known to industry and the general public through the adoption of the Diesel Risk Reduction Plan of 2000, the State Implementation Plan of 2007, and the Goods Movement Emissions Reduction Plan that it intended to achieve federal air quality standards by 2014 and reduce toxic diesel emissions by 85 percent by 2020. In other words this rule is the primary mechanism to achieve these goals and was expected. It is also largely fair. It does not require small businesses to upgrade their fleets until 2013 and gives multiple pathways to large trucking companies to achieve compliance. The over $1 billion dollars in public financing to offset these costs is significant, but should be increased and directed to smaller and older fleets that require the most assistance. We also ask that many of the exemptions given to agricultural vehicles be removed. Finally, it must not be overlooked here today that no matter how many filters we require, or new diesel trucks we introduce, diesel fuel and diesel trucks are inherently toxic. The burning of alternative-fuels on the other hand do not produce toxins and also produce fewer GHGs.

The economy of California has a strong foundation based upon the resourcefulness and vibrance of its citizens. This regulation will protect our health, our environment, and provide us with the economic opportunity to green our economy. I would like to present you with the petition signatures of over 828 Californians who urge you to act in the best interests of the health and economic welfare of all Californians. Thank you for your time and leadership on this issue.

COMMUNITIES FOR CLEAN PORTS

December 2008

Dear Chairman Mary Nichols,

California suffers a health and economic crisis originating from dirty diesel trucks, the state's largest source of diesel toxic emissions.

I urge you and the California Air Resources Board to adopt strong pollution rules for heavy duty diesel trucks during your board meeting on December 11-12, 2008. By CARB's own calculations, a strong diesel truck rule will prevent 9400 premature deaths, eliminate 950,000 lost work days, avoid 5.5 million restricted activity days for kids, and save the state up to $62.5 billion, even after the costs of replacing or retrofitting old trucks have been included.

I urge you to act in the best interests of Californians' health and economy, and not bend to Industry's pressure to weaken and delay clean up plans. The people of California cannot continue to pay the price of diesel truck pollution with our health, lost work productivity and massive health care costs.

With CARB's adoption of a strong diesel truck rule, we can reduce deadly and costly air pollution, and even provide necessary co-benefits of reducing climate-changing greenhouse gases.
