Comment:

Dear Sir:
I live in San Diego. By law my vehicle is required to meet strict emission standards. I also must show proof of insurance to the department of motor vehicles. Each day thousands of cars come across our border from Mexico. The cars do not meet our air emission standards. They are not up to our safety requirements. The majority are not insured. From experience I can tell you that driving behind just one of these cars----you can smell noxious fumes 10 car lengths away. The drivers are not insured and they do not adhere to our vehicle driving codes. I respectfully request that regulations be put in place on all vehicles crossing the border into the U.S. to control smog, vehicle safety, and insurance.

Sincerely,
D. Cook

Comment:

I am considering purchasing a DOT approved, street legal electric scooter. It has a range of approximately 40 miles, travels approximately 45mph and is completely electric. While it is not highway approved, I (and others) can use it to commute to work. It seems like this would relieve congestion on the streets, reduce carbon emissions, reduce oil/gas consumption and provide a safe way to commute to work and take care of errands around town. Last year your board included electric scooters which travel 65mph and are street AND highway legal. Please expand the definition and include these DOT approved electric vehicles.
Thank you.
David
