Executive Summary

Advanced Clean Equipment, including battery-electric and hydrogen fuel cell technologies, will be a key to meeting climate change goals, addressing regional air quality, and reducing exposure to air toxics in disadvantaged communities.

California Air Resources Board (CARB) staff has compiled and updated a list of zero-emission (ZE) equipment models and energy supply and storage systems (CARB staff defined as alternative charging solutions).

This list provides a valuable technology snapshot in off-road sectors and this will be a reference to show electrification potential by equipment type and manufacturer. Since 2020, 488 equipment models have been added to the list and Table 1 shows the number of equipment models per sector per technology type. It also includes temporal energy storage and portable energy supply options expected to overcome the limitation of battery-electric technology and electrify more medium- and heavy-duty equipment types.

Table 1. Number of Number of the listed equipment models by electrification type

Category	Number of equipment models (12/28/2023)
Electric Construction and Mining Equipment	306
Alternative Charging Solutions	50
H2FC Construction and Mining Equipment	10
Grid-electric Construction & Industrial Equipment	36
Zero-Emission Agricultural Equipment	29
Electric Industrial & Forklift & Airport GSE	57
Total	488

Advanced Clean Equipment (ACE) List

Off-road equipment (ORE) sector includes a broad spectrum of equipment and vehicle types, such as construction, agricultural, industrial, cargo handling equipment, locomotive, marine vessels, etc.

ORE manufacturers have put a significant effort into implementing various zero-emission technologies into their conventionally fueled equipment. Many demonstration projects are currently underway, with a growing number becoming commercially accessible. This web page is a showcase of zero-emission off-road equipment (known to CARB) that are currently available in the market or are in various stages of research, development, or demonstration. By sharing this list, CARB's staff intends to achieve the following objectives:

- Demonstrate progress in off-road zero-emission equipment availability.
- Provide a comprehensive reference of zero-emission off-road equipment for incentive or regulatory strategies.
- Introduce alternative charging options and strategies.

Engine power and battery capacity information may be subject to change as manufacturers continue to develop and update their demonstration project units.

CORE eligibility refers to the eligible equipment catalog of the Clean Off-Road Equipment Voucher Incentive Project (CORE)¹. Technology Readiness Level (TRL) represents the outcome of a comprehensive technology status assessment jointly conducted by CALSTART and CARB², offering insights into the status and market readiness of ZE equipment technology. The TRL scale ranges from 1 to 9, with increasing values indicating higher levels of technological maturity and readiness for deployment. TRL values around from 5 to 6 indicate the equipment's involvement in demonstration projects, while approximately TRL 7 indicates advanced technology demonstration or pilot projects. Approaching TRL 9, the ZE technology is considered primed for market assessment and commercial viability. The absence of TRL values signifies that the relevant equipment types were not included within the analysis scope.

Please contact us via junhyeong.park@arb.ca.gov to add unlisted zero-emission equipment cases or updated information. CARB staff are in progress of adding information on powertrain and battery capacity as well.
